The 2015 Alvarinho Nostalgia is unoaked. It comes in at 12.5% alcohol and 3.8 grams per liter of residual sugar, just under the most commonly used line for "fully dry." It seems a bit on the fruity side, but that fruit is nicely matched by its fresh feel and fine structure. There is grip and some tension on the finish, together with a bit of peach and pear. This is a very nice offering this year. It may not have the wherewithal to be a long-term wine, but it should drink well over the next couple of years, at the least. After that, we'll see where we are.
